Gerald Bar's Beggars Belief is a collection of short stories that explore the lives of people living in poverty and homelessness. The stories are both heartbreaking and inspiring, and they offer a unique glimpse into a world that is often hidden from view.

Bar, a former social worker, has spent years working with people who are homeless. His stories are based on his own experiences, as well as the stories of the people he has met. The result is a collection of stories that are both authentic and deeply moving.

The stories in Beggars Belief are not easy to read. They are full of pain, suffering, and loss. But they are also full of hope, resilience, and love. Bar's stories show us that even in the darkest of circumstances, the human spirit can prevail.

One of the most powerful stories in the collection is "The Man Who Lost His Shadow." The story follows a homeless man named George who has lost everything. He has lost his job, his home, and his family. All he has left is his shadow.

George is a proud man. He refuses to beg for money. He scavenges for food and sleeps in doorways. But even in his darkest moments, he never gives up hope. He knows that one day he will find his way back to a better life.

Another memorable story in the collection is "The Woman Who Lived in a Tent." The story follows a woman named Mary who has been living in a tent for over a year. She lost her job and her home after her husband died. She has no family or friends to help her.

Mary is a strong woman. She is determined to survive, no matter what. She works odd jobs to earn money and she volunteers at a local soup kitchen. She is also a talented artist, and she sells her paintings to raise money.

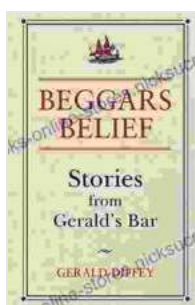

Mary's story is a reminder that even in the most difficult circumstances, there is always hope. She is a shining example of the human spirit.

Beggars Belief is a powerful and moving collection of stories. Gerald Bar's writing is honest, compassionate, and full of hope. His stories are a reminder that we are all connected, and that we all have a responsibility to help those who are less fortunate.
