Nadine Mackenzie's Once We Lived is a haunting and unforgettable literary masterpiece that explores the complexities of love, loss, and the enduring power of the human spirit. Set against the backdrop of World War II, the novel tells the story of three women whose lives are intertwined in the aftermath of the war.

Grace, a young woman from England, falls in love with Tom, a Canadian soldier, during the war. They marry and have a child together, but their happiness is short-lived. Tom is killed in battle, and Grace is left alone to raise their son. She eventually remarries, but her heart never truly heals from the loss of her first love.

Evelyn, a nurse from Canada, meets Tom while he is recovering from his injuries. She falls in love with him, but knows that he is already married.

She is forced to watch as he returns to his wife and family, and she is left with only her memories of him.

Anna, a young girl from Poland, is orphaned during the war. She is taken in by a kind family who helps her to rebuild her life. She eventually marries and has a family of her own, but she never forgets the horrors that she witnessed during the war.

The lives of these three women are intertwined in unexpected ways. They are all connected by their experiences during the war, and they all share a deep longing for love and happiness. Once We Lived is a beautifully written novel that explores the complex and often contradictory emotions of the human heart. It is a story about love, loss, resilience, and the enduring power of the human spirit.

Characters

The characters in Once We Lived are complex and well-developed. They are all flawed and make mistakes, but they are also capable of great love and compassion.

- Grace is a strong and independent woman who has faced many challenges in her life. She is a loving mother and wife, but she is also haunted by the loss of her first love.
- Evelyn is a kind and compassionate woman who has always put others before herself. She is deeply in love with Tom, but she knows that she can never have him.
