Rejoice In My Gladness: The Life of Tahirih

Rejoice in My Gladness: The Life of Tahirih

by Janet Ruhe-Schoen

★ ★ ★ ★ 5 out of 5

Language : English
File size : 2152 KB
Text-to-Speech : Enabled

Screen Reader : Supported
Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
Word Wise : Enabled
Print length : 383 pages

Tahirih was a Persian poet, philosopher, and women's rights activist. She was born in Qazvin, Persia, in 1817. Her father was a mullah, and she was educated in the traditional Islamic sciences. However, she soon became disillusioned with the traditional role of women in Persian society. She believed that women were capable of much more than simply being wives and mothers, and she began to speak out for their rights.

In 1848, Tahirih met the Báb, the founder of the Bahá'í Faith. She was immediately drawn to his teachings, which emphasized the equality of men and women. She became one of the Báb's most devoted followers, and she played a key role in spreading his message. However, her outspokenness and her refusal to conform to the traditional roles of women angered the religious authorities. She was arrested and imprisoned several times, and she was eventually executed in 1852.

Tahirih was a pioneer for women's rights in Persia. She spoke out against the traditional roles of women and fought for their right to education and equality. She was a courageous and outspoken woman who paid the ultimate price for her beliefs.

Tahirih's Childhood and Education

Tahirih was born into a wealthy family in Qazvin, Persia. Her father was a mullah, and she was educated in the traditional Islamic sciences. However, she soon became disillusioned with the traditional role of women in Persian society. She believed that women were capable of much more than simply being wives and mothers, and she began to speak out for their rights.

Tahirih's father was not pleased with her outspokenness, and he tried to force her to conform to the traditional roles of women. However, she refused to be silenced. She continued to speak out for her beliefs, and she even wrote a book called "The Unveiling of Secrets" in which she argued for the equality of men and women.

Tahirih's book was a controversial work, and it angered the religious authorities. She was arrested and imprisoned several times, but she never gave up her beliefs. She continued to speak out for the rights of women, and she became a symbol of hope for women all over Persia.

Tahirih's Involvement in the Bahá'í Faith

In 1848, Tahirih met the Báb, the founder of the Bahá'í Faith. She was immediately drawn to his teachings, which emphasized the equality of men and women. She became one of the Báb's most devoted followers, and she played a key role in spreading his message.

Tahirih's involvement in the Bahá'í Faith angered the religious authorities. She was arrested and imprisoned several times, but she never gave up her beliefs. She continued to spread the message of the Báb, and she became a martyr for the Bahá'í Faith when she was executed in 1852.

Tahirih's Legacy

Tahirih was a pioneer for women's rights in Persia. She spoke out against the traditional roles of women and fought for their right to education and equality. She was a courageous and outspoken woman who paid the ultimate price for her beliefs.

Tahirih's legacy continues to inspire women all over the world. She is a symbol of hope and strength, and her story is a reminder that even in the face of adversity, it is possible to stand up for what you believe in.

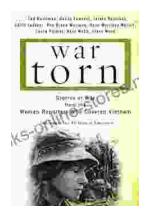

Rejoice in My Gladness: The Life of Tahirih

by Janet Ruhe-Schoen

Language : English File size : 2152 KB : Enabled Text-to-Speech Screen Reader : Supported Enhanced typesetting: Enabled Word Wise : Enabled Print length : 383 pages

Stories of War from the Women Reporters Who Covered Vietnam

The Vietnam War was one of the most significant events of the 20th century. It was a complex and controversial conflict that had a profound impact on both the United States...

The Hero and Saint of Islam: A Perennial Philosophy

Ali ibn Abi Talib, the fourth caliph of Islam, is a figure of great significance in the Muslim world. He is revered as a hero and a saint, and his...