Synopsis

Speedbumps is a 2004 action comedy film starring Seann William Scott, Burt Reynolds, and Fred Ward. The film follows a group of friends who, after being laid off from their jobs, decide to start a carpet cleaning business. However, they soon find themselves in over their heads when they get involved with a group of dangerous criminals.

The film begins with Jake (Scott), a young man who is struggling to find a job. He has recently been laid off from his job at a construction company, and he is having trouble finding a new job. One day, Jake is walking down the street when he sees a group of men cleaning a carpet. He decides to stop and talk to them, and they offer him a job. Jake accepts, and he soon becomes friends with the other carpet cleaners.

The carpet cleaners are a group of misfits, but they are all good-natured and hard-working. They include Bob (Reynolds), a former cop who is now the group's leader; Sam (Ward), a former marine who is now the group's mechanic; and Benny (Adam Arkin), a former actor who is now the group's cook.

The carpet cleaners are doing well, but they soon get involved with a group of dangerous criminals. The criminals are led by a man named Rhino (Tom Sizemore), and they are trying to steal a valuable painting from a local museum. The carpet cleaners get caught up in the criminals' plot, and they soon find themselves in a dangerous situation.

The carpet cleaners must use all of their skills to defeat the criminals and save the day. They must also learn to work together as a team, and they must learn to trust each other.
